OPIUM SMOKING IN SHENSI WORSE THAN THE FAMINE

Relief Workers Disgusted By Evidence Of Official Corruption

MUCH MONEY IS WASTED

Hayes Brings Out Complete Lack Of System In Distributing Relief Contributions

BY JOSEF W. HALL
(Staff Correspondent, China Press)

Lichuan, Shensi, April 1.—The chief reason why such unparralleled dissension exists between official and non-official, Chinese and foreigner, Catholic and Protestant, on the relief committees of this province is that there is lacking a sufficiently urgent crisis to force these naturally divergent factions together. Since thousands of dollars of relief money from international, foreign and Chinese sources in Peking, Shanghai and other places have been pouring into the hsiens which have succeeded in getting themselves on the famine list, and since the only standard of distribution to the tens of thousands of names set down as "extreme sufferers" in each of these counties has been the favor of the recipient with some faction or member of the local county committee, it is not surprising that disharmony has flourished.

Some of the most respected and efficient workers upon the central as well as the hsien committees have come to Mr. Hayes and myself privately to state that they would be most happy to see funds to Shensi cut off altogether, and the entire relief work here strangled at its source. Although insisting that there is some distress here, they express their conviction that the eight hundred thousand dollars already scattered through the province has not served to rescue one individual from the certainty of death by starvation, and they feel little hope that any future funds which may arrive will be used to any better advantage.

FOREIGNERS DIVIDED

The foreigners involved in relief whom I have talked with may at present be divided into two classes. Those of one class feel that, since the money is allocated to the province, it is well enough to co-operate with the Chinese in expending it according to the nearest possible approximation to the ideal which is attainable. Those comprising this class are largely persons who are very busy with their own work, mission or otherwise, and who feel that effort put into the work to pull it closer to the ideal can not, under the circumstances, produce results commensurate with the sacrifice of their regular work, the time and the labor required.

The other class consists of those who regard the matter solely from a conscientious standpoint, and who insist that if they are to be involved in it at all, it must be conducted in a correct manner. The majority of persons in the latter class would be glad to resign or see the inflow of funds cut off altogether. They realise that Shensi, suffering primarily from opium and maladministration, and, with its rich lands underpopulated since the decimation of the Mohammedan rebellion a half-century ago, has no rightful claim to funds given from abroad to rescue those who, through the improvidence of nature, are facing death. Shensi, in the opinion of the observer, has no more right to these funds than has Hunan or Kwangtung or portions of Szechwan, where the peasantry have been reduced to destitution by the repeated robberies of brigands of the soldiers as well as the Honest-to-God type.

INTERNATIONAL CONTROL

The attitude of the foreigners of the province toward famine relief work has, as a matter of fact, only sprung into importance since the visit of Mr. John Hayes has put some semblance of international control over the funds. In Lichuan, here, for instance, three thousand dollars of international funds have already been distributed previous to the formation of local international committee, which took place only today under the direction of Mr. Hayes. This money was remitted by Sian, in the absence of an accredited treasurer here, to the local Chinese Catholic priest, and distributed by a Chinese so-called committee consisting of agents of the county magistrate. The investigation work and recording

DEPUTY MARSHAL NEVILLE CRAIG DIES IN HOSPITAL

Many Mourn Loss Of Kindly United States Official

Neville Craig, United States Deputy Marshal, is dead. And with his passing comes a loss to the American community to be measured not merely by the sorrow of his own particular friends, but in terms of personal service and acts of human kindness in the interests of that community.

Mr. Craig died at 8:50 o'clock yesterday morning at the General Hospital, where he had been taken two weeks ago, suffering from an acute attack of appendicitis. A ruptured appendix was the cause of his death. He was operated upon March 22 and for a time it was believed that he was on the way to recovery, but a few days ago it became evident that he was failing and that in his weakened condition he could not survive the attack.

WAS U. S. ARMY VETERAN

Mr. Craig was 47 years of age and a native of Montana. He was unmarried. He came to Shanghai about three years ago, after a long honorable service in the United States Army. He was among the personnel of the early Philippines forces, coming out to the East in the Hospital Corps. He had thirty years of service to his credit—his foreign service counting at the rate of two for one—and at the time of his retirement was, and had been for some years, a sergeant, first class. During his Philippines experience he stood high in the estimation of his departmental commanders, including General John J. Pershing, under whose direct command he served in Mindanao. He was for a time stationed at Dapitan, Mindanao, the place to which Jose Rizal was exiled, and also served later at Davao, where for long periods he was the only man with a knowledge of medicine in the vicinity and accomplished work which brought him most favorably to the attention of his superiors.

Later Mr. Craig was hospital steward in the transport service and for four or five years travelled upon runs which brought him to the China coast. He came to Shanghai to stay in 1918, being employed by the L. Everett Company for a time and later doing work for the Shanghai Gazette. He assumed the position of Deputy United States Marshal in the autumn of 1918, following the death of Mr. John Kavanagh.

WAS FRIEND IN NEED

During his government service here he came to be known to a wide circle of friends and endeared himself to his associates. The unfortunate and the needy, into contact with whom his work as Deputy Marshal frequently brought him will feel his loss with special poignancy, for it was said of him that he had done more for their assistance than any

HARDING SAYS U.S. CANNOT APPROVE VERSAILLES PACT

Adds That He Does Not See Need For Hurry On Knox Resolution

NOTE SENT TO ALLIES

Complaint Made On Manner Of Distributing Former German Possessions

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, April 5.—President Harding, in the course of an interview, stated that he was convinced that there was no practical way in which the Government could consider the ratification of the Treaty of Versailles, but that there was no need for precipitate action on the Knox peace resolution. There was no reason, he added, for reversing the position he had adopted when he voted for the resolution.

New York, April 5.—The New York Times, referring to the Government's policy says that whilst there will be no specific pledge of a military or political alliance with Europe, a declaration will probably be made in the Knox peace resolution that if the peace of Europe is again threatened by any Power or combination of Powers, the United States will regard such a situation as menacing its own peace and freedom, and will consult with other Powers with regard to a means for removing the menace.

Paris, April 6.—In the course of a speech before the Senate yesterday, on foreign policy, M. Briand attributed France's anxious financial situation to the bad faith of Germany who, he said, had endeavored to aggravate temporary differences which arose between the Allies, but had unexpectedly encountered a solid front.

The Premier expressed the opinion that Germany would soon divulge sources of her revenue, at present concealed when she realised that the Allies are determined to enforce the Treaty of Versailles.

In conclusion, M. Briand declared that France considered it prudent not to follow Great Britain's lead in signing a Trade Agreement with the Soviets.

Paris, April 6.—According to the Echo de Paris, the United States has forwarded a note to Great Britain, France and Italy, declining to be bound by the Treaty of Versailles or by the decisions of the League of Nations, and complaining that the Allies shared out the former German colonies, including the Island of Yap, without consulting America.

French opinion regards the note as seeking to establish it as a serious principle that America is not bound by any of the conclusions reached in Europe since the Armistice.

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

New York, April 5.—The French Premier, M. Briand, in the course of a speech in the Senate—says a Paris despatch—paid a tribute to the loyalty of the United States in resisting the insidious overtures of Germany. He declared that if Germany continued to resist after May 1, France would make her pay.

1,500 Houses Lost In Big Tokio Fire

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, April 6.—A serious conflagration occurred today in the neighborhood of Asakusa Park. Starting at 8:30 o'clock this morning in the house of Mr. Fukuemon Nakamura, an actor, who is reported to be missing, it was not extinguished until 2:30 this afternoon, by which time about 1,500 buildings had been destroyed, including eight temples, a theater, a school and a police station.

At one time the amusement quarter of the city was threatened, but, despite the absence of water, which greatly handicapped the fire brigade, this quarter was saved. Relief work is being conducted in the large Monganji Temple, and elsewhere.

Body Of Man Found On Golf Course Identified As Ex-Sinn Feiner

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 6.—A powerful appeal, signed by nine English and Scottish bishops and eleven presidents and moderators of English and Scottish Nonconformist Communions has been addressed to the Prime Minister and to Sir Hamar Greenwood, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, and has been circulated amongst the Christian churches, urging the Government to alter its Irish policy which, it is asserted, is exposing us to misunderstanding and provoking hostile criticism throughout the Empire and the world. The appeal pleads that the Government should arrange a truce and resolutely pursue a magnanimous course.

London, April 5.—The body found yesterday on Ashford (Middlesex) Golf Links has been identified as that of Vincent Fovargue, who disappeared four months ago from Dublin, where he was wanted by the Crown Forces as a Sinn Feiner.

A police investigation at London shows that Fovargue's body was driven to the links in a motor-car.

Peking Denounces Monarchist Talk

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, April 6.—A Presidential mandate strongly condemns the disseminators of baseless monarchical rumors and instructs the military and civil authorities in Peking and the provinces to take prompt and drastic measures to suppress such seditious rumors and to arrest and punish with the severest penalty of the law those responsible for the spreading of them.

Salvation Army Lassies To Sacrifice Lives In Leper Colony

THESE three Salvation Army lassies are going to devote the rest of their lives to the care of lepers in the leper colony in Java. Left to right: Elizabeth Brooks, of Cole-Orton, England; Alice Riggs, of Sheffield, England, and Germaine Mueller, of Paris. They were photographed in Boston on their arrival there on their journey to the far away East Indian Islands. The Salvation Army Mission among the lepers of Java has been established for twenty years. Almost the entire work of caring for these incurables is done by the Salvationists.

MARCH 29.—The family has been raving about somebody called Opal Whitely and somebody else called Daisy Ashton, that they said were infant prosidies. I guess I'm as smart as they are, even if a lot younger, so I'm going to keep a diary myself.

The family can't read it, of course. They're awfully stupid. I heard mother say just now that the amah had better take me out, as I'm making marks all over a piece of paper on the diningroom floor. Will continue diary in kitchen. That's where I spend most of my time anyway.

I live in a nice brick house with my family but though I have been introduced to the others, I am not well-acquainted with anybody except the amah. She speaks a nice, easy language and not the funny kind of foreign talk the others use. I'm learning to understand them, though. This morning I heard them wondering where all last night's chicken went. But when I started to tell them about the cook's two third cousins who are boarding in the kitchen, mother said, "Listen to the little dear. He's trying to say 'Daddy.'"

Have decided that the family is quite hopeless. Will learn to read the Want Ads as soon as possible so as to find a new home.

MARCH 30.—There are lots of things about grown-up talk that I don't understand yet. Today papa told my auntie that if she didn't make good pretty soon, he would send her back to America. Auntie cried and said that if papa would be decent to poor Bertie, she would soon have a man to care for her.

"Bertie!" said papa, "He isn't a man; he's a lap-dog."

"He comes from a very good family!" Auntie said, crying some more.

"He must have come a long way," papa said.

"And he knows some of the best people in town," auntie replied.

"Perhaps. I always said myself that the night watchman was a pretty good fellow," papa remarked.

It's too deep for me. I'm going to take a nap.

MARCH 31.—Went out today with the amah. Mama thought we went to the Public Gardens, but we didn't. Amah took me calling on Sinza Road, where all her family live in a nifty two-roomed house. They were very much interested in my new back tooth. First amah put her finger in my mouth. Then her brother, Lo Shing, First Rate Lady Best Style Tailor, put his finger in my mouth. Then her cousin, Ah See, who runs High Class Gambling Parlor, put his finger in my mouth. Then Liou Zung, Stylish Maker of Ancient Chinese Ornament, put his finger in my mouth. Wish amah's family wasn't so fond of garlic.

APRIL second.—Went out with amah again this morning, and a fresh Jap baby made a face at me in Hongkew Park. Will get even some day. When I was enjoying bottle at home later, mother said, "He's getting to be such a big baby that pretty soon we can give him solid food." If she only knew what I had this morning! A piece of meat dumpling that amah chewed for me and a water chestnut. Amah is a good sport

APRIL third.—Had colic. Squalled.

APRIL fourth.—Didn't sleep well last night, as father came home late and made lots of noise. Mother hasn't had much to say this morning. Very unusual. Looks like rain.

APRIL fifth.—Not much doing today. Papa asked mama how how her bridgeparty went. Mama said she lost five dollars. Pa said, "Five dollars: Do you think I'm made of money."

"Who dropped $200 on Silver Streak last fall?" mama inquired sweetly.

Papa turned red and murmured that accidents would happen. Mama said yes, they would but that was no reason for betting on one of them. Papa picked up a poetry book from the table in a hurry and started to read out loud. He read, "The stag at eve had drunk his fill."

"Yes," said mama, looking at papa, "That is the worst of those stag parties."

Papa stopped reading poetry.

APRIL sixth.—Bertie called again today and said that he was not feeling well because a few months ago he had had a bad attack of water on the brain. Papa said it was too bad they removed it, as water is better than nothing. Auntie is not speaking to papa now. Grown-ups are very curious.

APRIL sixth.—Saw that fresh Jap baby again in Hongkew Park. Made a face at it. Mama said today that we might go to America soon, but that we can't take amah. Very sorry. Hate traveling with strangers. Believe I'll give the family my resignation and try to get a job.

CONCERTED ACTION BY TRIPLE ALLIANCE NOW THREATENS IN BRITAIN

Railwaymen Will Be Asked To Join Great Walkout Started By Miners; Situation Worse, With No Prospect Of Settlement

COMMONS IN ALL DAY DEBATE

Labor Members In Parliament Defend Action Of Pitmen; Lloyd George Firm In Stand That Subsidy Cannot Be Granted By Government

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 6.—The transport-workers' conference today decided to support the miners, and immediately to negotiate with the railwaymen and miners with a view to the Triple Alliance taking concerted action.

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 5.—Half a million members of thirty-five unions were represented at a delegate conference of the Transport Workers' Federation at Westminster today, presided over by Mr. Harry Gosling, to consider action in regard to the coal crisis. The delegates assembling handed the "rank and file" a manifesto from the miners declaring, amongst other things:

"You are faced today with the greatest crisis in the history of the British working classes. A million miners have been locked out by the mine-owners, aided and abetted by the Government. It will be your turn next. Every sailor, fireman, steward and cook is faced with a reduction of ninety shillings per month. Not even Lord Shaw's Decision Award is sacred. We, miners, look for definite and decisive action now, for sooner or later you will be compelled to act in self-defence. Why not join your comrades in the mines and meet the frontal attack of the capitalists by mass action of the workers? The lock-out of the miners is the first battle and your place is in the firing line."

KENSINGTON GARDEN CLOSED

Kensington Gardens have been closed to the public. During the railway strike last year part of Hyde Park and the adjacent Kensington Gardens were used as a great milk distributing depot and apparently preparations are being made to establish a similar depot.

London, April 5.—While no further incidents have occurred in England and Wales, it is reported that an ugly situation is developing in Scotland. Pipers headed bands of miners at Leven and Benhar, near Shotts, who demanded that the furnaces should be immediately extinguished. The police guard at Benhar was overpowered after a fight in which four policemen and several loyal employees were injured. The miners then proceeded to burn five hayricks, and smashed the machinery and left twenty-five pit ponies to drown underground.

A mysterious explosion occurred at the Shettleston colliery near Glasgow after the manager and overman had descended to examine the machinery. The manager was killed and the overman gravely injured.

POLICE REINFORCED

Reinforcements of police have been sent to the pits in Lanarkshire and the Lothians in response to urgent requests for help. The electric power station at Lochgelly, in Fifeshire, has been cut off and the water supply in a number of Fifeshire villages has failed owing to the stoppage of the pumps in the mines. All the volunteers have been compelled to withdraw from the East Fife collieries. The intimidation of the pumpmen threatens the Glamorgan, Cambrian and the naval collieries in Wales with disaster.

The country is eagerly awaiting tonight's debate in the House of Commons in the hope that suggestions with a view to peace may emerge from it. There is a growing opinion in favor of the proposal that an extended period of State control of the mines may prove a way out.

Lord Derby, addressing the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce today, urged that the State control should be continued for another month. There is no development of the reported opening of informal peace negotiations between the Government and the Miners' leaders. The attitude of the latter and of the Triple Alliance is criticised by Mr. Havelock Wilson, the President of the National Sailors' and Firemen's Union, who created a sensation at the Transport Workers' conference, which was private, by a speech denouncing the miners' demand for a subsidy and declaring that the seamen were not making a fuss about the reductions with which they were threatened and did not ask the Triple Alliance for help. Mr. Wilson's speech was received with expressions of disapproval by many delegates, but it made a considerable impression on the representatives of the stevedores at the conference who are notably opposed to strike action.

DEBATE IN COMMONS

London, April 5.—The debate on the coal situation in the House of Commons today was opened by Mr. Austen Chamberlain who moved an address to His Majesty thanking him for his message in which he declared the existence of a state of emergency.

Commander Kenworthy and a few members of the Labor Party wahted to challenge a division in this connection, but the motion was passed without debate and without division.

The new Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Robert Horne, speaking of the powers granted under the state of emergency, emphasised the seriousness of the coal stoppage which, he said, had extinguished the first flicker of reviving trade. Nobody could say when the flicker would be relighted.

There were shouts of dissent from the Labor members and counter-cheers from the Ministerial benches when Sir Robert continued by asserting that the last coal strike had robbed us of many markets. He dwelt on the American coal invasion of Europe which the present crisis threatened to aggravate. He expressed the fervent hope that the discussion would proceed calmly and thus create a spirit conductive to a settlement. The fact that there was a slump in coal prices had falsified the anticipations of six months ago and the situation must be met.

Dealing with the Labor interruptions to the effect that it was a lockout and not a strike, the Chancellor of the Exchequer pointed out that notices posted in the South Yorkshire and other pits showed an increase and not a decrease of wages. (Cheers from the Ministerial benches). He asked whether the Labor members contended that the South Yorkshire miners were locked out. (Cries of "Yes" from Labor benches. Laughter from Ministerial benches.) Sir Robert said that he was content to leave the matter there and he did not propose to discuss the fairness of rates in particular districts because the Miners' Federation had refused to discuss the rates with the owners.

INSIST UPON SUBSIDY

Sir Robert Horne said that he had met the miners' representatives last week and offered to help them in regard to the reconsideration of the rates by the owners, but he was immediately told that it was useless for him to see the owners, because the situation could only be solved by the Government's granting a subsidy. Therefore, he said, the House would understand that the present controversy was not about rates but whether the country should assist the coal trade with a subsidy which might run to tens of millions in a single year. Such a subsidy could only be paid by taxes and the greatest taxpayers were the great industries which were already suffering the direst tribulation. Were they, he asked, going to tax these industries in order to subsidise an industry which had better chances? (Labor interruptions and Ministerial counter-cheers.)

Sir Robert declared that the only possible basis for discussion now was on the wage systems of some districts. (Some Labor cries of "Never" and "Over our dead bodies.") The Chancellor said he hoped that before many days they would see a change in the Labor Party's attitude in this connection. He considered the suggestion to extend the Government control of the mines by a month was impracticable and he repudiated the suggestion that this was a first attack on the wages of the men, again quoting the case of the South Yorkshire miners. He concluded by dwelling on the country's difficult industrial position, as a result of which every trade was suffering alike and he urged the miners to bear their difficulties like the others and to await more prosperous times. He expressed the hope that the miners were profiting by their opportunities for reflection since the stoppage and that they were now more ready to negotiate than they were last week.

LABOR'S ATTITUDE

Mr. J. R. Clynes (Labor) inquired why the date of decontrol of the coal industry had suddenly been brought forward to March 31, when it was on the Statute Book that control would continue up to August 31. The negotiations were progressing, he said, when suddenly something occurred which caused them to break down. The miners did not reject the possibility of a decrease in their wages but it would have to be on a uniform percentage. Plans for the rescue of the mining industry must be devised. The owners' proposals, which were apparently supported by the Government would throw back the industry to pre-war conditions. (Labor cries of "Worse") Mr. Clynes urged that control should be continued for three months and reminded the Premier that it was he who first began to tell the workmen to be audacious and united so as to be able to hold what they had won by the war.

Mr. Stanley Holmes (Liberal) urged the formation of a committee composed of three business men and three non-mining labor leaders with a view to finding means to re-open negotiations.

Mr. Asquith said he was convinced that the miners did not embark on this struggle from motives of mere passion and yet were almost completely agreed with Sir Robert Horne's remarks in regard to the cessation of control and the financial and industrial impossibility of calling on the taxpayer to maintain solvent any particular industry by a subsidy. The root of the trouble lay in distinguishing between regulating wages on a national or district basis and he urged that a further exploration of these principles might prove that the differences were not unbridgeable with a scheme of evolution involving the gradual reduction of wages. Meanwhile a preliminary to such discussion was that the life of the mines must be preserved.

Introducing a similar resolution in the House of Lords, Lord Curzon said he trembled to anticipate what would be the verdict of the Triple Alliance. A desperate spirit was already manifesting itself in some parts of the country and he had just learned from Scotland that the damage to some of the pits would be appalling unless it were arrested within twenty-four hours. They may be confronted during the week end, Lord Curzon added, with a crisis as grave as any during the war. He pictured the development of a national convulsion, disorder, violence and acute class warfare. No government, he said, could yield to such a menace. The foodstocks of the country were ample and steps were being taken to provide the necessary forces to maintain order and the defence of public buildings and the protection by the police of the brave men who were endeavoring to save the mines. At the same time, the Government would take every opportunity towards conciliation.

THOMAS DEFENDS MINERS

Continuing the debate in the House of Commons, the Railwaymen's leader, Mr. J. H. Thomas, said that the miners were being offered a wage equivalent to the prewar rate of eighteen shillings a week. Every decent employee, he said, should rebel against such a wage. He deplored the talk about a fight to the finish and added that at the moment the odds were overwhelmingly in favor of the dispute spreading. The wages offered to the miners justified them in saying: "We prefer to starve to death rather than work to death" and this view would be backed by organised labor. Mr. Thomas concluded: "We will support the workman in refusing a starvation wage."

In the course of the debate the miners' leader undertook to have all the pit ponies still down in the mines brought up immediately.

Mr. Lloyd George declared that there had been a demand for the decontrol of all industries and that the subsidising of any great industry was completely indefensible. Such a subsidy was specially indefensible, having regard to the heavy taxation and the condition of the Exchequer, and the continuation of control to August 31, would have meant a national loss of £100,000,000, the burden of which no Government would be justified in placing on the already overburdened taxpayer in order to pay wages or pay mining profits. There was no reason to suppose, the Prime Minister continued, that a month's extension of the control would have avoided a stoppage. The Government was ready to enter into fresh discussions with a view to a settlement on two conditions. Firstly, it could not recommend to Parliament the maintenance of the industry out of the general taxation and secondly, it was impossible to resume the control.

ONLY TWO LIMITATIONS

Outside these two limitations there was a very wide field for discussion and the Government would be willing to do anything possible to promote a good understanding between the owners and the miners, but if there were such negotiations the Miners' Federation should give every facility and assistance to prevent the pits from being destroyed during the discussions and also to save any dumb animals remaining below. He expressed the hope that the miners' leaders and the owners would meet immediately to consider a permanent settlement and to prevent the repetition of disputes which were so damaging and such a menace to the industry of the whole country.

The debate was adjourned until tomorrow.

London, April 6.—The miners' leaders are disappointed at the Premier's speech in the House of Commons last evening, Mr. Vernon Hartshorn, a member of the National Executive of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain and Labor member of Glamorgan (Ogmore), declaring that "Lloyd George had shut the door on everything."

It is not known what is going to happen next, but it is understood that there will be no meeting between the mine-owners and the Miners' Federation on the lines suggested by Mr. Lloyd George.

Revolutionary Hero Made Captive, Kills Self In His Prison

Brother Of Deceased Discredits Theory Of Suicide; Alleges Mal-treatment

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Hankow, April 6.—An official telegram has been received confirming the report of the suicide of General Lan Tien-wei, the revolutionary hero of 1911 and Southern commander, by the family of the deceased at Hankow. The message was sent by General Lan's brother, Lan Wen-wei, commander of Southern troops in Chungchow, Szechuen.

The deceased general was recently routed by the forces of Tuchun Wang Chuan-yuen from Western Hupeh where he had been for the last three years. On retreating into Szechuen, Lan was arrested by Chang Chung, the treacherous commander-in-chief of Kweifu. Chang proposed to exchange General Lan for ammunitions with Tuchun Wang but, the request was refused.

On March 25, however, Chang Chung went to Chungking under heavy guards, bringing with him his captive, Lan. On the night of April 2, Lan was said to have shot himself with a pistol in the military prison in Chungking. When the report was heard, guards and secretaries of Chang rushed into his cell only to find him dead and bleeding heavily.

The fatal wound was found in the forehead. His brother, however, denied the suicide theory and declared that the former revolutionary hero had no pistol in his possession.

other occupant of the position since its creation here.

His associates at the American Court and Consulate yesterday spoke of his death in terms of sincerest sorrow.

"He was a man," said one of them, "whose passing will be genuinely felt. Always eager to fulfil the duties which his position made incumbent upon him, he was actuated by a higher sense of duty —that dictated by conscience and principles of human kindness— and he was ever ready to exert himself to the utmost for an unfortunate or for a friend."

Outside his official duties, Mr. Craig was an active Mason. He was a member of the Scottish Rite bodies and of the Ancient Landmark Lodge, A. F. and A. M., as well as of the Nile Temple of the Shrine. He was Almoner of the Scottish Rite body.

It is hoped to be able to send the body to the national military cemetery at Arlington, Va., in accordance with Mr. Craig's wish, and a request in this connection has been sent to the War Department.

Funeral services here will be held at Bubbling Well Cemetery at 4 p.m. on Sunday and will be in charge of the Scottish Rite Masonic body.

American Woman's Club

A symposium on "Children's Hobbies" was held at the Carlton Cafe yesterday morning by the Mothers' Department of the American Woman's Club. Mrs. F. J. White, who gave the principal addresses, stressed the point that the frequent changes occurring in children's interests are a sign of development and not of instability. Mothers should therefore be quick to take advantage of the educational possibilities in each new hobby, before the child's interest turns to something else. Gardening, collecting stamps and coins, carpentry and interest in aircraft are frequently-occurring hobbies which have considerable educational value. Mrs. White stated that though parents cannot force interest in a subject after the whim for it has passed, they can often direct the child's attention to new hobbies of a constructive character. They can also frequently succeed in turning interest away from hobbies of an objectionable type.

Several members contributed to the interest of the discussion by recounting incidents from their own family circle. Mrs. M. C. Guss read a review on Freeman's "How Children Learn." The next meeting of the Mothers' Department is scheduled for April twentieth, when Mrs. L. J. Birney will read a paper on "The Development of the Moral and Religious Life."

THE TRADE MARK OF RELIABLE OAK

KD

IS THE BEST TOO GOOD FOR YOU?

No! And the sooner you realise that OAK is the one perfect wood for FLOORING, PANELLING, WAINSCOTING and all INTERIOR DECORATIONS, better.

The cost is not prohibitive, in fact it runs about the same as a first class carpet.

The arguments in favour of OAK are quite unanswerable; durability, cost, and last but by no means least, HYGIENE.

Insist that all lumber for flooring and panelling for interior work bears the "Three Pines" Trade Mark, and the letters "KD" signifying kiln-dried, thus ensuring its perfect quality, and suitability for the severe climatic conditions of China.

We give all orders personal attention. After you have placed your order with us, the flooring will be laid and all work carried out under the personal supervision of a foreign expert of the Company. We prefer to do this for you.

PEKING OFFICIALS NAME COMMITTEE TO CUT EXPENSES

Military Costs Cut $8,000,000 In Year, Premier Points Out

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, April 6.—In connection with the Government's retrenchment policy, it is announced that a committee has been formed, consisting of representatives of all the ministries and official bureaux, the vice-ministers forming the executive committee. The first official meeting of this committee was held today, after which there will be meetings each Wednesday and Friday, until a plan has been completed and put into operation, which is estimated to occupy a month.

At the inaugural meeting, the Prime Minister pointed out that, since he resumed the premiership last year, the military expenditure had been reduced from $13,000,000 to $5,000,000, being equivalent to 24 divisions disbanded.

As the military expenditure had been reduced, the administrative expenditure must also be reduced. The intention, he said, was to reduce the military and administrative expenses $3,000,000 and $2,000,000, respectively, which would bring the expenditure easily within the legitimate scope of the Government.

As regards administrative retrenchment, the Government intended to cease the payment of concurrent salaries. Officials might be asked to hold more than one post, but in that case each would only receive only one salary. In the second place, superfluous officials would be dismissed. Finally, the Government were determined to cut out waste in all departments.

The Finance Minister ably supported the Premier, whose statement was well received.

Unpainted Property Deteriorates Rapidly

Good painting makes a house bring a high rental or a high class price. Property values have risen rapidly and boosted repair costs skyhigh. Good paint forestalls repairs and costs so little in comparison, that the best paint is the greatest economy. SHERWIN-WILLIAMS paint is that kind.

Outside painting requires good judgment in selecting a durable paint. The action of the weather on metal surfaces, composition roofs and wooden walls is very injurious and speedily produces rust, rot and an unsightly appearance.

of names was done in an equally irresponsible manner. This magistrate, who has succeeded in getting his county listed as a black, or first-class famine area, has, by the way, twenty-eight thousand persons listed as prospective starvation victims.

Questioned by Mr. Hayes this afternoon as to the preposterous size of his list, he replied: "But you know how bad it is for the faces of the village elders if I do not accept their figures." Upon being instructed by Mr. Hayes in the principals of international committee operation, he turned to the foreign missionary here, saying: "I shall easily fix that up. Tomorrow I will send you an official notification of your appointment as treasurer, and the matter will be settled." He still considers the committee and its functioning as a matter of his official appointment. When he called this afternoon he brought with him a mob of "famine victims" to impress us, and they followed into the private compound yard of the home of the missionary with whom we are staying. We were forced to ask the magistrate to send his "body guard" away. Most of the men he had gathered up were, from appearance, confirmed opium smokers. It may safely be said that a majority of the males receiving international relief in these districts are addicts. Since they receive their relief in coin, it can be imagined what becomes of a good deal of the money.

Much of it, is gathered in by the officials in the shape of an extraordinary tax at the present moment under collection throughout the portion of the province ruled by Sian. The people, at the end of last year, were compelled, in many districts, to pay a year's land taxes in advance, and in addition to this a forced popular loan of one and one-half million taels is being collected by the provincial Treasury. This imposition was sanctioned by the Provincial Assembly (members of which are at one and the same time the official famine bureau representatives of their respective counties who endeavored so hard to impress us with the appealing misery of their constituents).

The Civil Governor proved more considerate than these protectors of the people, and ordered the collection suspended in some cases until after the harvest. We have today, however, passed proclamations of the Treasury recently posted over the gateways of villages demanding immediate payment, and threatening dire punishment for failure or delay.

The situation in the Sanyuan area, administered by the so-called Southern Army is even more farcical. A fund of some $50,000, from southern sympathisers in Shanghai fell into the hands of the leaders to be used for the relief of the population under their rule. They issued tickets exchangeable for relief money to the people, and at the same time levied a tax approximating the relief funds authorised. In many cases tax receipts were given in exchange for the relief tickets, saving, of course, by a simple operation in bookkeeping, the expense and unpleasantness of tax-collection.

Three days ago, while Yue Yu-ren and Hu Li-seng sat across the table from Mr. Hayes in Sanyuan dramatically describing the condition of their populace, and vividly emphasising their concern and desire to procure some assistance from outside for their countrymen, their cavalry horses were being pastured upon the six-inch high wheat fields of the peasants.

A few days later he abstracted another bottle which tested up 43.6 percent wrong. Yesterday Soong appeared in the Mixed Court and was fined $50 for each lapse, or $100 in all, and promised to keep a watchful eye on his wares in future.

Waive Wharfage Dues On Rice For Famine

The Municipalities, International and French, both have informed the Customs authorities here of their willingness to waive the wharfage dues on rice imported for famine relief, according to correspondence quoted in today's Municipal Gazette.

The agreement of the authorities to reconsider the matter, on which they had previously indicated a refusal, followed upon another letter from Mr. E. Gordon Lowder, Commissioner of Customs, urging the exemption and pointing out that the Chinese government had adopted such a policy as regards all grain for famine alleviation purposes. This letter was transmitted to the French Municipal Council by the secretary of the International Municipal Council with the recommendation that it be complied with.

Blood Poisoning

Yet Another Grand Recovery

Our Portrait is of Mr. WILLIAM HARBORNE, of 6, Railway Road, Perry Bar, Birmingham, England, who writes:

"About two years ago I met with rather a bad accident. My arm was cut severely, and I had to have it stitched at the hospital. This caused me six weeks' absence from work, and after resuming my duties for one week I broke out all over my body with huge Boils. Again I went to the Hospital, and was treated for Blood Poisoning; this happened on three successive occasions, until I began to think I should never be cured. Then I gave Clarke's Blood Mixture a trial, and the first bottle or two seemed to be driving out the poison, so I persevered, and after taking ten bottles I was cured. It is now over twelve months since I left off taking your Clarke's Blood Mixture, and I have seen no signs of any further blood disorder."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout. "$100 Invested in the right place, at the right time, will earn as much as one man steadily employed"

JAY GOULD.

Have you $100 or more to invest?

Read this Story!

SOME months ago seven responsible business men familiar with oil ventures saw an opportunity in oil so far removed from speculative risks as to be far more of a legitimate investment than a gamble.

They knew of oil in the State of Wyoming, in the Big Piney-La Barge field, that is the equal of the finest Pennsylvania crude found only in Tiona, Pa. This oil runs from 45% to 50% gasoline. The gasoline and kerosene combined runs to 80%. In fact the crude oil is used in motor cars and trucks on the field when gasoline is unobtainable.

They made a thorough investigation on the field and found out that: (a) there were oil wells of 200 to 300 barrels a day capped and waiting for either a refinery or a pipe line; (b) no pipe line was being planned and none would go in until a 10,000 barrel well was produced; (c) gasoline was being brought in from distant points for use on the field and in neighboring towns; (d) even if a pipe line were put in the demand for the products of a refinery would be increased rather than diminished: (e) and finally that with the railroad at Kimmerer, 45 miles away, and constant truck traffic back and forth, there were easy transportation facilities.

The logical conclusion was the formation of a company to erect and operate a refinery, and in order not to limit the activities of the company provision was also made for oil drilling.

There were seven wells with a minimum capacity of 200 barrels a day each capped and waiting. It was first decided to operate an 800 barrels a day refinery using oil from these wells. But in order to eliminate as far as possible the element of speculation, the company decided to commence operations with a 300 barrels a day refinery capable of being enlarged by additional units as needed, for the reason that the product of at least 300 barrels a day could be sold in the immediate neighborhood or within a radius of 50 miles. Contracts were accordingly signed with the well owners for these requirements.

The site selected for the refinery is 45 miles from Kimmerer and bids fair to be in the heart of one of the most promising oil fields in America. Among the companies drilling or preparing to drill in the immediate neighborhood are the Associated Oil, the Du Ponts, the Shell, and some 60 smaller companies.

Naturally if the company could own its own wells and refine its own oil the profits from the refinery would be just that much larger than if it had to continue to buy its oil.

Accordingly valuable leases on neighboring lands were obtained to the extent of 1,933 acres. Of these, 40 acres are proven land, that is, oil is being produced on three sides leaving little doubt that the 40 acres are actual oil land. To obtain these carefully selected leases was not easy. After considerable negotiation the owners consented to exchange their holdings for stock in the company.

This completed the preliminaries. The seven men who organised the company are now the Board of Directors of American Producers & Refiners, Inc. The company has purchased the refinery which is now in California or en route to the field. The contracts for the oil have been settled. The leases on the oil lands have been settled.

At present, the company is offering to the public 100,000 shares of guaranteed stock of a par value of $1.00 Gold. This $100,000 will be used in the erection and operation of the refinery which should be in operation by July or August. A conservative estimate of earnings shows that the refinery should pay a dividend of about 80%. Taking an extreme estimate, the earnings should not fall below 30%.

In order to give outside investors every chance of protection, no dividends will be paid holders of other stock until holders of this guaranteed stock have received dollar for dollar on their investment or a dividend of 100%.

The directors of the company are so convinced of the soundness of their plans that they are giving their own time and money to the disposal of this stock, and are not asking any other stockholders to help bear this expense.

Mr. Charles H. Raven, Vice President of the Company, is now visiting relatives in Shanghai and is prepared to explain the proposition in detail to all who are interested. "What may be a pure gamble if you do not know what you are doing may prove upon investigation to be a legitimate investment."

You are invited to make the most thorough investigation. Level headed business men have made their investigations and have put in their ten times $100.00 and more. You have the same chance to investigate. Why don't you!

Now as to the possible earnings from striking an oil well .....But that's another story.

Call on Mr. RAVEN, or ask him to call on you!

Pennsylvania, Cornell And Case Athletes Will Be In Open Meet

SEEK OFFICIALS BERTHS

China Contest Committee Is Deluged With Requests For Free Badges

Three men who have made their mark in American college and club athletics will be seen in action at the open international contests to be held in connection with the Far Eastern Championships starting here the 30th of next month and inquiries are being received daily from lesser lights who travelled pretty fast or jumped pretty high in the dim and distant past.

The trio who are already set for the meet are R. J. Moore, Max Chaplin and Paul Young, the last named one of the few Chinese who earned the right to wear an American college letter.

Moore is a Cornell weight man who can toss the 16-pound iron ball around 42 feet and he is daily working out at Hangchow, where he is employed by the Standard Oil Company. A member of one of Jack Moakley's greatest aggregations and later with the New York Athletic Club, he was a familiar figure and a consistent performer at track and field meets on the East Coast of the United States not too long ago. Moore will enter all the weight events.

Max Chaplin, who is now somewhere in Anhwei Province, was one of those unfortunate classy track men who was at the University of Pennsylvania when Ted Meredith was burning up the track and thus Chaplin is not so well known. But he was a crack in college and afterwards, having been chosen a member of the United States Olympic team. He did not make the trip, however. He worked out at the University of Nanking meet and with a big field entered in the half mile run, took the event by seven boat lengths and then went into the mile and nearly lapped the field.

Paul Young is a Chinese pole vaulter who has just returned to this country after a sojourn in class rooms and on athletic fields of the Middle West. He was second in the Western Intercollegiate pole vault last Spring. Young is a graduate of Case University in Cleveland and should take the pole vault here without much trouble.

Several local men will enter various events. Charley Glauque, Rose, Renneman, Remedics and others of the Shanghai Harriers Club with several from the American School and St. Francis Xavier's College are working out in preparation for the games.

AFTER OFFICIALS JOBS

Human nature is the same the world over. Dr. J. H. Gray, honorary secretary of the China Contest Committee, has been deluged with offers from ex-athletes who desire to officiate at the coming games. Long letters have been received from all parts of China giving in detail really great athletic records and modestly admitting that the respective writers of the communiques are probably the best officials in the world.

Whenever a big meet is staged in Timbuctoo, Kankakee, Patagonia, Butte, Poonha or Peabody the men in charge are overwhelmed with communications from those who crave to be near the athletes.

Dr. Gray will announce his list of officials in a few days—and most of them will come from Shanghai as the rail fares are as consistent as the price of canned goods and Arrow collars.

Whereupon the "Committee of Forty" becomes the "Committee of 62." President Fred McIntyre, impatient at the deplorable inactivity of some of his lieutenants, stepped out yesterday and added 23 more to the original group of scouts depended upon to recruit 1,000 members for the Shanghai Amateur Baseball Club. One left on the Asia Sunday so that the figures are correct.

Less than 250 men have joined the club in six days and 750 more names are needed. If you haven't joined yet, see one of the membership Committee.

Heinie Groh, diminutive third sacker of the Cincinnati Reds, and his odd-shaped bat, his own creation, with which he hopes to win many games for the ex-world's champions next season. Heinie claims his bat has a grip that gives wonderful latitude. All the weight of his peculiar bat is in the right place, says Heinie, to swat the ball a crushing blow, and with less effort and strength than used when swinging an ordinary bat. The dimensions of the Groh bat are: length, 32¾ inches; bulged part, 15 inches long and 8¾ inches around. Weight is 48 ounces.

BRITISH CONSUL NEW PRESIDENT OF CRICKET CLUB

Sir Everard Fraser Elected At Annual Meeting Of Organisation Yesterday

TRIBUTE TO A. P. WOOD

Retiring Veteran Has Been Member Of Club 35 Years; President Since 1906

A record attendance number of cricketers attended the annual meeting of the Shanghai Cricket Club, held last night at the Clubhouse on the Race Course. More than 90 members were present. The meeting was featured by the passing of a resolution providing for an increase in the entry fees and the yearly subscriptions, and the election of officers and committees for the ensuing year.

After the reading of the notice calling the meeting, and the President's address, the subject of accounts and finances were gone into in detail by Mr. H. E. Muriel, who explained the summarised auditors' statements offered for the members' information.

In going into the suggested increase in subscription fees, Mr. Muriel explained that the greater fee had become necessary, in order to meet the new pavilion loan account—An item of $5,000, it was estimated would be necessary for the coming year, to wipe out the clubs arrears and to leave a small balance over.

The rates, Mr. Muriel said, had been increased once before, at an extraordinary meeting held in October 1918, but this was found to be insufficient. The proposal offered by the committee called for an entrance fee of $25 as is required at present, and a monthly subscription of $9 for the six summer months, as against a subscription of $30 per season prescribed at present.

Some discussion ensued on the advisability or need for such an increase and a compromise was finally reached by which the subscription of $7 per month for the six summer months was carried. The motion was by Capt. E. I. M. Barrett, seconded by Mr. Potts. Other resolutions passed included the acceptance of the reports and accounts for the last year, and proposals covering alterations and amendments to several minor bye-laws.

TRIBUTE TO MR. WOOD

A fine tribute was paid to the retiring president Mr. A. P. Wood, who leaves Shanghai soon for a tour of the East, and, in June for England. Mr. Wood has been a member of the Shanghai Cricket Club since 1886, and president since 1906. Mr. G. M. Billings in making the farewell speech for the club, said:

"We have one more account to settle, gentlemen. That is our account with our president, Mr. A. P. Wood. This is probably the last occasion at which he will preside at this club, so I must take this opportunity to say a good-bye to him. We have a great debt to pay to Mr. Wood but he is a generous creditor.

"Mr. Wood has been a member of this club since 1886. He has been a regular player and a good player. We might well use him today, were he still in playing form. Mr. Wood was a good left arm bowler, and a good bat. He got 62 once that I remember. He must be good, and in any company.

"Mr. Wood was an interport bowler. He played on the Shang-

Children Cry for Fletcher's
CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth., Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realise that of all the children born in ivilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

BRITISH CONSUL NEW FRESIDENT OF CRICKET CLUB

hai team that went to Hongkong some years ago for a match there and was one of the two players who escaped death when the steamer carrying the team stranded and sunk in a typhoon. His name was mentioned among the casualties and condolences were sent out from England."

Mr. Billings spoke of Mr. Wood's close interest in cricket, his keen and steady interest in the affairs of the club and added that the retiring president had become so endeared to their hearts of the club members as to be well assured of their best wishes for prosperity and good wishes in his life in retirement at home.

The following officers and committees were elected: President, Sir E. D. H. Fraser, British Consul-General; Vice President, Mr. F. W. Potter; General Committee: Capt. E. I. M. Barrett, cricket and tennis; G. M. Billings, cricket; H. E. Muriel, cricket; Dr. H. H. Morris, cricket; Dr. W. E. O'Hara, cricket and tennis; W. N. Hansell, cricket and tennis; A. W. Hayward, cricket; F. L. Wainwright, cricket and tennis.

Balloting Committee, to serve with the General Committee: C. D. Field, S. J. Deeks, W. J. Hawkings, E. G. B. Lover, W. H. L. Warrener, E. G. Tait and W. C. G. Clifford.

Mr. Wood's address follows:

Gentlemen: We can all look back to the last season as one of the most successful we have had for some years, great interest was taken in cricket, and I am sure constitutes a record in the annals of the club in having played during the season three interport matches, two of which were played away from home.

HANKOW

The first against Hankow, we won, and I now wish to record our best thanks to Hankow for their kindness and hospitality to our team. I hope that they will one of these days be able to send an eleven to Shanghai. I am sure a hearty welcome awaits them.

TIENTSIN

The second game was against Tientsin, which sent a very sporting team to Shanghai, resulting, after a very interesting and exciting game, in a win for Shanghai by only a small margin a great measure due to the excellent fielding of Tientsin. We all much enjoyed the game, and hope to be able to send a team to Tientsin to play the return match.

HONGKONG

The third match was at Hongkong. After several disappointments and difficulties, we managed to get together a good eleven to play in the Triangular contest at Hongkong, resulting as you know, in our being beaten by Hongkong and winning our match against the Straits. In a letter I had from the president of the Honkong Cricket Club he wished to congratulate the Club in having so many young and promising cricketers ready to fill the vacancies caused by veterans who in the course of time retire and take up games not quite so strenuous as cricket.

Our man returned expressing their thanks for all the kindness shown to them during their stay in Hongkong and full of admiration of the care and thought that had been given to all the arrangements made for their comfort and happiness. It will be a great pleasure to welcome Hongkong in the middle of May to play the return match.

As time for practice is very short, it is intended to open the ground about the 15th of this month. This will allow the selection committee to pick out any new players and allow the old cracks to get into form.

I am sure all the members of the Club will wish to join with me in congratulating Captain Barrett on his fine batting performance during the summer of last year when he was at home.

TENNIS

Never has more tennis been played on the grounds than during last summer. The Monday afternoons for visitors proved a great success and I hope they will continue.

I am afraid the Club was not very successful in the Tennis League matches but some very good inter-club matches were played and much enjoyed.

Man Accused Of Plot To Murder Gen. Li Released On Security

Voong Kyi-ming, charged with conspiracy to murder General Li Kung-yuan in his home on Weihaiwei Road on December 29, when three men entered the place and shot one of the general's aides, appeared again in the Mixed Court yesterday and the case was further remanded, the defendant being released on $3,000 shop security.

Voong was arrested in Frenchtown several weeks ago by two of Li's secretaries, who were in consequence haled into the French Mixed Court and heavily fined on a charge of illegal detention. The case in the International Mixed Court came before Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Yui and will be the subject of a special hearing.

Women's Overseas League Hears War Worker Lecture

Mrs. C. T. Owens Speaks At Meeting; Miss Sanger Is New President

Playing Santa Claus to 800 homeless French children was only part of a day's work to Mrs. C. T. Owens, former war worker, who described her various experiences to the Women's Overseas League at a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Navy Y.M.C.A. Mrs. Owens was associated with a French organisation supported by American money which cared for 40,000 children from the devastated regions. The first day she arrived in Paris, she was told to go to the market and buy fruit enough to make a Christmas treat for 800 children. She returned to headquarters accompanied by taxi-cabs laden with barrels and subsequent events proved that she had gauged the young French appetite aright.

Later Mrs. Owens was assigned to investigate the condition of families applying for refugee relief from the French government. "Though I met with almost unbelievable instances of poverty and privation, I never heard one word of bitterness against the Germans in any of the households I visited; Mrs. Owens said. The only thought of these poor families was to save their children for France."

When the United States went into the war, Mrs. Owens became associated with the Red Cross in the capacity of searcher. It was her duty to interview each new man coming to a large Red Cross hospital on the outskirts of Paris, in order to seek some trace of soldiers reported missing. Later she was assigned the unenviable task of staying with the dying during their last moments, in order to record their words for their families at home.

Mrs. Owens had several narrow escapes, having been knocked down on one occasion by the explosion of a shell from long-distance gun, which killed four people standing near her.

At the end of her talk, Mrs. Owens was given a vote of thanks by the League. Miss Helen Sanger of the Y.W.C.A. was elected president of the organisation, to take the place of Miss Caroline Thompson, who is to leave for Peking on Friday morning.

Rent Increase Excited Chinese

Rising rents have caused a flutter among the residents of Chekiang Road and following an announced increase of from $5 to $6 per month by landlords there the renters addressed a petition to the Chekiang Road Street Union asking that organisation to interfere in their behalf.

Representatives of the Union held a conference with a number of the landlords in one of the Foochow Road teashops and as a result of the negotiations the property owners consented to cut the proposed raise by $1.

DENBY PLEASED

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Washington, April 5.—Mr. Edwin Denby, Secretary of the Navy on his return from Haiti on board a destroyer, said the Atlantic Fleet was "in fine shape." He made a record homeward run, covering 1,600 miles in 55 hours.

Ordered To Move, Tenant Threatens To Commit Suicide

Trouble with a tenant, who is alleged first to have threatened to stab his landlord and then to commit suicide on the premises, brought a call for police assistance to Wayside Station Tuesday evening.

The call came from one Captain Fuhler, a German, at 37 Tongshan Road. Fuhler told the police when they arrived that he originally owned the property at that number but that he had sold to a Chinese and that he was unable to turn the premises over because a man named Hansen, to whom some of the rooms were sub-let, refused to move, making the threats mentioned when ordered to do so. The police found Hansen in bed and he refused to confirm or deny the complainant's story, but insisted that he could do as he pleased in his own room. He was warned and Fuhler was advised to see the Danish authorities, Hansen, formerly a German, now being a Danish subject.

WHAT DO YOU SEE IN THE MIRROR ?

Does your mirror show you that your complexion is pale, that your eyes lack lustre and that lines of premature age appear in the face? Are you losing weight slowly and do you find ordinary exertion an effort? Does it tire you to walk up stairs, to work and to think? Have you lost the ability to make a quick decision and take prompt action whenever necessary? Are you subject to headaches and spells of nervousness? Do you suffer from chills, sleeplessness, indigestion and a pressing down pain on the head?

These are a few of the symptoms of thin blood. If you have any or all of these symptoms do not waste any more time in indecision and worry. Begin treatment at once with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the blood and nerve tonic. This remedy will make the blood rich and well-oxidized and enable it to carry strength and nourishment to the disordered nerves and to every part of the body.

Among those who have tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and been benefited by them is Miss E. Smith, of Walsh Street, Brisbane, Australia. She says:

"I lost my good colour, and through Anaemia soon fell into very bad health. I only craved to rest about the house as I found no pleasure in anything. Walking or going upstairs made my heart thump, and left me breathless. I often fainted away without the slightest warning, and at other times I had attacks of dizziness that made everything seem black. My head often ached all over, and I could hardly bear the throbbing. I woke up in the morning as tired as if I had never been to bed, and I grew thinner and more pallid every day. I had no appetite and dreaded meal-time.

"It was a girl friend who recommended me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The first bottle encouraged me to go on, for I certainly felt better and began to enjoy my food. When I had taken four bottles I was eating well and gaining flesh. The colour was coming back to my face and lips and everybody noticed the difference. That I am well and strong today I owe to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My health could not be better that it now is."

Grateful cured men and women all over the world speak in high terms of praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the famous blood and nerve tonic. Try them yourself without delay. They are obtainable from medicine vendors everywhere, also post free, at $1.50 the bottle, $8 for six bottles, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Chita Demands Japanese Withdrawal

A brief cablegram the other day announced that the Constituent Assembly of the Far Eastern Republic, functioning at Chita had forwarded a note to Japan formally demanding withdrawal of the Japanese forces from Siberia. We have now received from Chita the text of the message and a reading of it discloses the fact that the Far Eastern Republic, which as we pointed out yesterday is working hand in hand with the Moscow Government and can unquestionably count on the support of the latter in this as in other matters, is determined that the Japanese invaders must go, either of their own accord or by force.

Why, we again ask, do the Japanese persist in the vain and futile policy which they have pursued in Siberia and along that vast country's southern borders in China, supporting such absurd adventurers as Semenoff and Ungern? This policy has now lost all force. It has degenerated into one of makeshift, the moving of troops here and there, evacuation of one place, seizure of another, these movements accompanied by polite, evasive notes which deceive no one.

That the Siberians have some laughter left, notwithstanding more than six years of hardship, was revealed in the Chita Assembly, when in introducing the note to Japan, Akhmatoff, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, said that the committee was unanimous in adopting the note but that one member had refused to vote. Asked the reason for this, Akhmatoff replied: "He didn't consider the note strong enough, and while the committee agreed with him, it did not consider any changes advisable."

When he came to the paragraph in which the note said: "The Constituent Assembly positively insists upon the immediate withdrawal of the Japanese Expeditionary Forces," the hall was shaken by the sudden, resounding outburst of applause.

The note reviews the history of the Japanese invasion as follows:

In the beginning of 1918 the Japanese Government published a declaration addressed to the Russian people, which said: "The Government of the United States realising how grave was the situation, had recently addressed the Japanese Government proposing that it despatch speedily forces for the purpose of relieving the situation of the Czecho-Slovak troops. Wishing to meet this proposal the Japanese Government has decided to start immediately despatchment of the forces required for this purpose. A part of these forces will be sent to Vladivostok at once. In commencing this activity the Japanese Government preserves its steady unswerving desire to maintain friendly relations with Russia and the Russian nation, confirms its statement regarding the policy of respect for the territorial integrity of Russia and of refraining from any interference with her internal politics. In addition it declares that upon fulfilment of the above stated purpose it will immediately withdraw all Japanese forces from the Russian territory."

It obviously follows from this declaration that upon evacuation of the Czecho-Slovak troops the Japanese forces should also have left. However, in the communication of the Japanese Government of August 13, 1918, that is within a few days after that solemn declaration had been published, a new point was brought forth—the menace to China and Japan on the part of the Soviet Forces, headed, according to the communication, by Austrians and Germans. In the declaration of March 31, 1920, when evacuation of the Czecho-Slovaks was being completed, the point brought forth in the communication of August 13, 1918, was still more emphasised. The question regarding evacuation of the Czecho-Slovak troops had here receded into the back ground while the most prominent place was accorded the motive of the proximity of Siberia and Japan. In this declaration the statement of withdrawal of the Japan forces after evacuation of the Czecho-Slovaks is not reiterated so explicitly. It but states that the Japanese forces will be withdrawn from Siberia as soon as possible.

On July 3, 1920, nearly four months after the regrettable events at Nicolaevsk on the Amur had occured, the Japanese Government declared the withdrawal of its forces from the Transbaikal and simultaneously, occupation of the Russian half of Saghalien under the pretext of the absence of legitimate Russian authorities with whom it might communicate in order to reach a favorable solution of the question connected with the events at Nicolaevsk. On September 18, 1920, evacuation of the Habarovsk sector was announced. In the declaration issued on this occasion and signed by General Ooi, Commander of the Japanese Forces in Siberia, the following wish was expressed; "At the same time I express my sincere wish for a speedy unification of the Russian Far Eastern territory that peace and the welfare of the population might be insured thereby and good-neighborly relations between the two nations the Russian and Japanese strengthened." The same wish has been reiterated in subsequent proclamations and declarations of the Japanese Government and Command.

In the interests of strengthening the friendly relations between the two nations—the Russian and Japanese—the Constituent Assembly will not discuss the point how the solemn declarations of the Japanese Government and the Japanese Command were being enacted in deed, beginning with August of 1918. The Constituent Assembly shall but give a concise summary review of the present state of affairs: The Russian Saghalien has been occupied, the Maritime District where Japanese forces are stationed very little resembles Russian territory, because there the Japanese Command acts as if it, and not the Russians, were the hosts. The Maritime District is the only part of the Far Eastern Republic where the remains of the criminal counterrevolutionary gangs of Semenoff have a chance of assembling, under the protection of the Japanese Command, and indulge in murders and robbing of the peaceful population of the Maritime. The Government of the Far Eastern Republic and the District Administration can not control the property of the Russian people can send neither food-stuffs nor commodities, nor railway cars to other parts of the Republic, owing to which the population of the other Districts of the Far East are suffering hunger and cold. Trains are being searched, cars, occupied by representatives of the Russian authorities, uncoupled, if it so pleases any one of the representatives of the Japanese Command. The recent notes regarding the fisheries, handed over by the Japanese Consul General to the Russian authorites are also suggesting involuntary comparison between the grievous reality and the declarations. The Constituent Assembly finds it hard to dwell upon the events of April 4 and 5, to recollect the great numbers of innocent victims devoured by the Japanese intervention. Nevertheless, the Constituent Assembly considers it necessary to state that these events are entirely due to the presence of Japanese forces in the Russian Far East, which so disturbs the Russian population.

The representatives of the Russian Far East solemnly declare that there are no aggressive designs with regard to Japan, Korea, and Manchuria. The people of the Far East wants but establishment and strengthening of peaceful relations, resumption of mutually advantageous commercial relations. The Constituent Assembly, regretfully, is compelled to state that even the people of the evacuated districts are still unable to make the transition to peaceful work and to establish durable peace and order, because the presence of Japanese forces in a part of the Russian territory inspires the population with distrust and tends to foster a feeling of uncertainty of the coming day.

Notwithstanding all difficulties the Russian people have united into a single Far Eastern Democratic Republic, founded on the principles of civil liberties, universal, equal, and secret vote, inviolability of person and property of Russian and foreign citizens alike. In the Far Eastern Republic the authority belongs to people who are deeply convinced that the surest pledge of liberty is peace, peaceful-co-existence with neighboring nations. Considering that the Czecho-Slovak troops have already withdrawn, even from the view point of the Japanese declarations there are at present no reasons for continuing to maintain Japanese forces on the territory of the Far Eastern Republic. The time has come for the Japanese Government to prove by acts that when despatching its troops in 1918 to the territory of the Russian nation it pursued no secret aim at territorial usurpation, taking advantage of the temporary weakness of the Russian people caused by the war and the consequent disorganisation and revolution.

The great historic moment has arrived when it depends upon the Japanese Government to determine for years and, perhaps for centuries the mutual relations of two great nations the Russian and Japanese. Expressing the will of the entire Russian Far East that the country be liberated from foreign intervention, the Constituent Assembly positively insists upon immediate withdrawal of the Japanese Expeditionary Forces from the territory of the Far Eastern Republic. The Constituent Assembly is confident that such withdrawal would be a powerful factor in the cause of restoration of normal relations between the Russian and Japanese people. The geographic proximity of both countries, through knowledge of the Far East by Japanese merchants and manufacturers, the natural resources awaiting application of foreign capital for their development, all this serves as a pledge of future close ties in mutually advantageous peaceful relation between the people of the Far Eastern Republic and that of Japan, when the grievous remembrance of the past is effaced and the people have returned to peaceful work. The Constituent Assembly hopes that in the near future the Far Eastern Republic left to herself will be recognised by the Japanese Government which will not delay to enter into official relations with its plenipotentiary government.

"There's a sun still shining in the skies." Pelessier, delightful entertainer of "The Follies," used to sing that song. That was in the "good old days." Maybe the sun is shining in England today. But it doesn't shine there very much in April ordinarily. However, here's hoping. With the miners all out the sun will be more welcome than ever. One must be philosophical. Reminds us of the German-American mayor who got into a fight with the gas and electric companies and refused to sign their checks. They promptly shut down and the city was thrown into darkness. When the public complained the mayor said: "That makes no never mind. We got a moon yet, aint it?"

To hear the local gloom artists prate one would think England was skidding to the demnition bowwows on a greased bannister. Listen to that old social and moral reformer Carlyle, picturing the England of his day in "Past and Present":

"The condition of England, is justly regarded as one of the most ominous, and withal one of the strangest, ever seen in this world.

"England is full of wealth, of multifarious produce, supply for human want in every kind; yet England is dying of inanition.

"With unabated bounty the land of England blooms and grows; waving with yellow harvests; thick-studded with workshops, industrial implements, with fifteen millions of workers, understood to be the strongest, and cunningest and willingest our Earth ever had; these men are here; the work they have done, the fruit they have realised is here, abundant, exuberant on every hand of us: and behold, some baleful fiat as of enchantment has gone forth, saying, "Touch it not, ye workers, ye master-workers, ye master-idlers; none of you can touch it, no man of you shall be better for it; this is enchanted fruit."

"Fair day's wages for fair day's work!" was the cry of the worker of Caryle's days. The cry re-echoes again and reaches to the limits of Labordom. The miners would no longer allow the sun to determine which was day and which night; they would no longer allow capital to fix a wage.

"Fair is foul
And foul is fair."

muttered the witches of Shakespeare.

Fair wages to the worker appear foul to the Capitalist and what is foul to the workers seems fair to the Masters—and there is the deadlock. And so the refrain from "The Dairymaids" buzzes through our minds:

"Where's it all goin' to end."

Germany And Russia :-: By Francesco Nitti

Former Premier Of Italy Asks: 'How Is Germany To Live? She Will Be Compelled To Push On Resolutely Toward Russia, Where There Will Be A Field For Economic Activity'

Poland is not a guarantee of peace within its new confines; Poland may even constitute a danger, as far as regards its political attitude. It will be as well, therefore, to deal quite sincerely in speaking of that country.

There is something of a miracle in the resurrection of Poland. Since, in 1772, it was dismembered and divided between Austria, Prussia and Russia there was no hope in the minds of the Polish patriots of winning back their unity. They agitated, out of sentiment and duty, but the idea of uniting the whole of the Polish fatherland in a single State appeared extremely improbable.

On the eve of the European war Russia was within the body of the Entente. The Central Powers and Russia, in the case of victory, would never have really renounced what was a century-old conquest. The victory of one of the two groups would never have led to the free and genuine reunion of triply divided Poland. What happened, on the contrary, was just what no one could foresee: the Central Empires have fallen, but at the same time Russia also has fallen. Poland, as the result of unforeseen events, has realised the miracle of its unity.

POLAND IS IMPERIALISTIC

But soon after the war Poland suffered from the intoxication of success: she asked for territories that were not Polish, or at any rate not mainly Polish, and she gave voice to imperialistic dreams. She is now in a state of war, even after the peace with Russia; she is in an almost similar situation of hatred with regard to both Russia and Germany.

Poland has under arms an army that is perhaps the most numerous in the world in proportion to her territory and her population (we do not speak of her economic resources). Vast imperialistic dreams are widespread in political circles, and there are territorial enlargements, especially in the direction of Ukrainia, in the aspirations of many Polish nationalists.

Those who have suffered from a foreign domination for a lengthened period easily abandon themselves to visions of greatness and dreams of dominion in the day of liberation.

The Treaty of Versailles was conceived with the ideal of depressing Germany and depriving her of any possibility of renewal. Thus the eastern confines were also traced, not in view of the ethnical and economic necessities, but on the basis of military criterions. Germany was to be crushed between France and Belgium, united in defense, on the one side, and by Poland, united in offense, on the other.

Russia is now dominated by Bolshevik violence; but no one can say that Russia will not rise again. Through one ruin after another, Russia will discover how to settle down, just as Germany, through one sorrow after another, will find again her economic greatness.

Now the nationalistic aspirations of Poland are in contrast with the sentiment of the Germans and the interests of the Russians at one and the same time. Thus, while Poland sees her economic resources diminish every day, she also sees the necessity of her armaments increasing day by day.

ERROR OF THE TREATY

In the sections from 8 to 11 of the third part of the clauses dealing with Europe, the Treaty of Versailles is concerned to separate Germany completely from Russia. This, perhaps, was an error. Their near neighborhood was perhaps a cause of diffidence and opposition, whereas by taking away any possibility of rivalry, the sympathy between them is increased.

With a population of more than 130 inhabitants for every square kilometer, without colonies, without a navy, with diminished mining resources, and having, as a result of the treaties, lost all her commercial organisations and her establishments abroad, how is Germany to live? She will be compelled to push on resolutely toward Russia, where, when once order is re-established, there is a field for every kind of economic activity.

Germany and Russia, by their constitution, are fatally destined to agree with one another.

The entire artificial edifice of the free city of Dantzig is based on the guarantee of the Society of Nations, of which neither America nor the vanquished countries form part, and in which certain of the conquering countries feel very uncomfortable.

Outside political treaties there are necessities of life and historical exigencies which ride roughshod over all accords and dominate all political combinations.

POLAND GROWS WORSE

Poland has realised the miracle of her unity; but she is struggling now in the midst of imperialistic dreams, distrust of her neighbors and economic ruin. Every day she is forced to make new military sacrifices, and every day her economic situation grows worse.

For a long time past the policy of the Entente has been a continual series of errors. The depressing of Germany means the hatred of Germany; the absolute isolation of Russia means the almost complete transformation of Russia into a military state; blind and unreasonable persecutions of the Turks means the stirring up of Islamic hatred.

The Bolshevik Government is the worst that can be imagined in its relations with foreign countries, and its international actions cannot inspire confidence in any one. That is true. But it is also true that the attitude of Poland is arousing great preoccupation in old Russian patriots.

Germany is above all desirous of clearing up her situation with the Poles. The small Baltic states have not a very great sympathy for Poland. It may even be considered that the peace between Poland and Bolshevik Russia is absolutely insecure. If the Polish action is not always to be praised for its moderation, neither is the Soviet Government ever reassuring in regard to its good faith.

In any case, Poland is surrounded by enemies, who are not yet in agreement with one another, but who are tending in the same spiritual direction. And every day she sees her economic resources becoming exhausted and her financial situation precipitating to ruin.

The most intelligent political men realise that a political system which is based, at one and the same time, on the struggle against Russia and the depression of Germany, is not possible. But there are external influences which are pushing Poland on this mistaken road, even against the will of her most enlightened politicians.

MENACE FOR POLAND

I have repeatedly had occasion to warn some of the most authoritative and responsible politicians of Poland that the situation of their country requires both great ability and extreme moderation.

Certainly, it is difficult to fight at one and the same time against the distrust of one's neighbors and against poverty and against the rancor of Germany and the brutal violence of revolutionary Russia. But it is just on this account that Poland's attitude toward Germany and the violence of some of her manifestations constitute not only a menace for the future, but a sure and certain damage.

We have the greatest interest in the preservation and consolidation of Poland. A peaceful and liberal Poland, an industrious and laborious Poland is not only a guarantee of peace, but a necessity of European equilibrium.

We must therefore conceive the hope that Polish politicians will convince themselves that what the Divine will has brought about in spite of the mistakes of man, the union of divided and humiliated Poland, must not be destroyed by the errors of policy; and resisting every suggestion brought to bear upon them, they will feel that a policy which is directed against Germany and against Russia at the same time is illogical and can therefore bring about nothing but ruin.

THE SWEET WATERS OF ASIA

"The Sweet Waters of Asia" is a delightful country retreat on the Asiatic shore of the beautiful Bosphorus, so named owing to several springs of crystal clear fresh water which bubble there.

Here, on a pleasant day, are seen parties of ladies and children from the Harems of noble Turkish families of Constantinople, who are always fond of making this sylvan spot the objective for a picnic.

Servants are sent ahead to prepare the mid-day meal and the popular Sherbet, Rahat Lakoum or Turkish Delight, and, of course, the golden-leafed cigarette, are much in evidence.

The sweet aroma of our "TURKISH AA" cigarette yields the very essence of a sunlit Turkish tobacco garden.

They are economical and thus within the reach of all.

You will experience a pleasure by trying a

The Fable Of The Veteran Club Girl And The Gentle Art Of Man-Taming

Once there was a flock of Dolly Grays who had nothing to do in the Afternoon except look for Kitchen Help, so they organised a Club at which Macaroons were served and Current Evils received many a Rap.

Several times they had settled all outstanding Differences between Capital and Labor, but they forgot to send Word to the Disputants.

One day they all took hold of a long Rope and pulled George Bernard Shaw down from his Pedestal. The only Thing that saved Shaw was that he did not hear about it.

But when they rallied around Home Topics, that was where they lived.

When it came to setting down Rules for repressing the natural-born Instincts of the Tots, they were Fine and Fancy.

Occasionally they took up Man and picked him to Bits. One Week they proved that he was absolutely N. G., and at the next Round-Up they discussed Ways and Means of keeping him at Home.

A Girl who had been on the Bargain Counter since the Year of the Big Wind, arose and wanted to know why, if Man was such a Bunch of Tribulation, they were not willing to pass him up. She was hooted and the Executive Committee threatened to take her License away from her.

A LOT OF FRAGILE THEORIES

Minnie McGraw had a very snappy Essay, tied with Blue Ribbon, on how to make Home so alluring that the Bread-Winner would not care to beat it into the Night Air. Min had just fluttered out of a School for Girls and she had a lot of fragile Theories that were simply waiting to be frost-bitten.

She allowed that if a Wife would put tissue-paper Shades on all the Lamps and surround the Sultan with plenty of Sofa Pillows and permit him to Smoke and then flit to the Piano and do a crooning Love Song, he would be so Charmed with his own Fireside that it would never occur to him to put on his Muffler and go Down Town for a little while.

Min had it all figured out. She was for a Cheery Home with an $80 Angora on the Prayer Rug and a glowing Bed of Coals in the Grate.

A reformed School-Teacher with Moss-Agate Eyes took a different Tack. She never had been a Bird in the Golden Cage, but she knew how to manage a Man because she had worked the whole Thing out by Algebra.

She said that the boss Scheme for anchoring a Wage-Earner was to smother him with an Atmosphere of Culture right at home. Then he wouldn't have to go to the Elks' Club in order to find intellectual Stimulus.

She advised each Wife to back the Provider into a Corner at 7:30 p.m. and read to him about Psychic Phenomena. Later on, by way of Recreation, they could take a couple of Leaves out of the Dining-Room Table and play Double Canfield.

EVAPORATION OF LOVE

Another Lady, who had been doing a Monologue for 40 odd years, cut in with a Theory that Home Life lost all Attraction because of the Evaporation of Love's Young Dream.

She said that the Honeymoon ought to be made a Continuous Performance. Even those who had been roped together for Twenty Years ought to sit around on one another, talking Baby Talk and feeding each other Marshmallows.

Then there arose a chunk of a Woman wearing Service Stripes. She had been to the Mill and got her Grist. She carried a line of Black Goods in Stock and was letter perfect on any Show that can be pulled off in a Church.

Four times had she looked the Preacher straight in the Eye and taken the tall Gamble. Of the Theories of Home-Making she knew precious little, but when it came to a working knowledge of Man; she was there with her Hair in a Braid.

"Men are roughly divided into two classes," she began. "We have those who love the Front Rooms so well that they cannot be dragged out after they are once curled up for the Evening.

ONLY IN DREAMS

"On the other hand, we have those who telephone ahead, so that it won't be too much of a Shock. I have tried both Kinds and you have my part of either one. My preference would be for the Boy that is around when he is needed, and keeps out of the way in between, but I never met that kind except in my Dreams.

"I will say this much for all of them. For the first month they can't be shooed beyond the Front Door. The Wife who is not Wise to the habits of the Critter sees him planted there all Evening, surrounded by the Wedding Presents and reading a History of the United States presented by his Fellow Employes at the Wholesale House, and she tells herself that Domestic Life is a Pipe.

"But there comes an Evening when he lowers the Volume of History and listens for somebody to call him up on the Phone and say that Adams of Galesburg is waiting for him at the Hotel.

AND SHE NEVER WILL!

"She never met Adams of Galesburg.

"She never will meet Adams of Galesburg, but she will hear about him now and then, also about Balancing the Books at the end of the Month, patting somebody through the Blue Lodge or the Consistory, and a Meeting of the Directors of the Business Men's League and the Committee on Street Improvement.

"Then the Time will come when no Alibi goes with the Dirty Sneak. She will go to the Kitchen to count up the Breakage and when she returns she will have the Battle Field all to herself, for he will have pulled the big Getaway. That is when she wants to join a Whist Club and buy a Motto reading as follows: 'Absence makes the Heart Grow Indifferent.'

"Now, I love to hear the Bright Berthas get up and do their Solos at a Club Meeting, but I am here to tell them that when the Other Half of the Sketch wants to duck, he will get out if he has to carry a Windowsash with him, and you can't hold him by playing on the Piano or reading Modern Verse.

"I've tried everything from putting Morphine in the Coffee up to Brute Force. Not a Chinaman's Chance! Now, when number 4 begins to act restless about 7 p.m., I slip him his Lid and tell him to come in without waking up the Cat."

Moral: True Happiness must be taken in Broken Doses.

Novel Cases In The Courts

The legal editor of The London Times makes the following comment on a closely drawn legal point:

"There has long been a conflict of judicial decisions on the question what form of communication from a debtor to a creditor will suffice to defeat the Statute of Limitations. An action which came before Justice Bailhache raised the point once again. The plaintiff sued on a promissory note which had been endorsed by the defendant in 1912, and had been dishonored on presentation. In April, 1913, the defendant wrote to the plaintiff: 'Please believe me that you won't be a loser yet, and leave it at that until I can fulfill my honorable promise.' In November, 1913, the defendant wrote to the plaintiff:

"'I hope that by this time you are feeling less acutely the loss you were put to * * * that it is before my mind almost constantly, I need hardly assure you, nor of my continued determination to see it settled. From the foregoing you can see, however, that the time has not yet arrived to do so, even in part. I only wish that it was, both for your sake and mine.'

"On August 2, 1914, he wrote:

"'Unless this European crisis develops into a war * * * I think the oil in this district will develop into something big very soon * * * in that case, unless I am mistaken, you can quite rely upon a payment in November, how much I can't say, but I will do my best.'

"On October 3, 1914, he wrote:

"'I am exceedingly sorry, but the promise I made to try and pay something to account next November has now quite gone by the board, and when propects will brighten goodness only knows. . . . I can only assure you that when I can you will be paid, if you have patience.'

"The question, therefore, arose whether there was an unqualified promise to pay the debt within six years before the issue of the writ on Oct. 23, 1919. Mr. Justice Bailhache, in giving judgment for the plaintiff, said that if there was an unqualified admission of a debt, without anything further, the law implied a promise to pay; but if the admission was accompanied by words of hope or expectancy that the defendant would be able to pay, those words might qualify the admission. The letters in this case contained an admission of the debt which was unqualified and from which a promise to pay must be implied. (Fettes vs. Robertson.)"

In an article on "Reading the Will," in The Docket, Virgil M. Harris concludes:

"But fortunately, the disappointments of life, its ills and strifes, are not the most frequent remembrances in wills; some of the sweetest and purest sentiments of the human heart are often contained in these legal monuments. Friendship and affection are often referred to and remembered substantially, and public charitable bequests yearly exceed business losses in the United States, and, it may be added, that only one will in 600 is successfully contested."

The Supreme Court of Virginia had the case of Devis vs. Alderson, a suit for specific performance of a land-purchase contract, where defendant purchaser claimed mental incapacity, concerning which claim Judge Burks remarks:

"Allusion has also been made to the fact that appellant was of the great age of 62 years, as affecting, in conjunction with other things, the validity of the contract; but the Court will take judicial notice of the fact that men of greater age than that so far retain the confidence of the Government in their mental capacity as to be placed in judicial positions, where they have to pass on the validity of contracts made under identical circumstances with the case in judgment."

Prof. Huxley Declares Life Is Not Necessarily Limited

"It Is Possible Steinach's Method Of Prolonging Animal Life May Be Extended To Man"

BY PROF. J. S. HUXLEY
(Lecturer at New and Baliol Colleges, Oxford University and Noted Experimenter in Life and Sex Control)

(In the following article Mr. Huxley, a bold and original experimenter in sex control who has become famous in England, reviews the principal experiments made by scientists in various parts of the world for the prolongation of life. He shows that it is now possible to prolong low forms of life indefinitely and that higher in the animal scale rats have had their life-span extended forty percent. By an increase in interstitial tissue, the age and vitality of man, he says, also can be increased. His conclusions are similar to those of Professor Serge Voronoff, French physician, who claims to be able to rejuvenate life in man by the grafting of interstitial glands from apes).

London, Feb. 26.—There are three main problems concerned with the prolongation of life.

The first is this: Is it possible in any animal to prolong life indefinitely?

The second concerns itself with the prolongation of the period of youth in man and in animals related to him.

The third, with the prolongation of the period of active maturity in such higher animals.

Regarding the first point we can now, as the result of the last twenty years' work, say definitely that the period of life is not necessarily limited in all animals.

One example will suffice. In certain fresh water worms, called planarians, it has been shown that starvation leads, not to speedy death, but to a general decrease of size until the animal is even smaller than when it was hatched from the egg; and, in its shape and activities the planarian, thus made small by hunger, is like a young individual.

By alternately feeding and starving half grown worms, Professor Child, of Chicago, has succeeded in keeping them within narrow limits of size, while other worms, allowed to feed normally, had given rise to eighteen generations.

What is more, his specimen remained active and did not age at all.

There is little doubt that in these animals, and in many other low forms of life, methods can be found for indefinitely prologing individual existence.

WILL NOT APPLY TO MAN

When we come to the higher animals, including man, however, the same methods will not work. The higher animals possess various arrangements that are self-regulatory and prevent, in most cases, a wide departure from the normal. Furthermore, alternate starving and feeding would not prolong the life of a dog or of a man, because they have lost the power of feeding on their own tissues to sufficient extent.

For the present, at least, we must be content with much smaller possibilities.

The first possibility in higher animals concerns the prolongation of the period of youth by special diet. It is well known that the proteins are necessary foodstuffs. Osborne and Mendel in the United States have shown that if certain proteins are given to rats as the only proteins of their diet, growth is not possible, although life and health are maintained.

This is well seen in the case of one of the proteins found in wheat, known as gliadin. When young rats are given this as sole protein, they fail to grow properly, although otherwise healthy. But if they are later put on to normal diet, they will start to grow at the normal rate, even though they may have reached an age far beyond that at which growth normally stops. It is further probable, though not yet certain, that the onset of old age will be correspondingly delayed.

However, the only work which brings with it possibility of speedy practical application is that of Professor Steinach, of Vienna.

RENEWAL OF YOUTH

In man and all mammals we find in the reproductive organs, besides the reproductive cells themselves, a mass of so-called interstitial tissue. This produces a secretion which controls the development of the characters distinguishing the two sexes, and, furthermore, stimulates to activity those parts of the brain which underlie the instincts and emotions connected with sex. This secretion also seems to stimulate other important glands, such as the thyroid and pituitary.

By cutting the duct of the male reproductive organ, even in old age, this interstitial tissue can be made to increase. Reproductive organs from a young animal can also be grafted into an old one.

By this means, i. e., by increasing the activity or the amount of interstitial tissue, Steinach claims that rats in the last stages of senile decay can be restored to normal and healthy maturity. Not only this, but the process has been repeated three times.

Each time, however, the supervening senility was more acute, so that there is obviously a limit to the repetition of the process. None the less, he was able to prolong the average length of life in some rats by as much as 40 percent.

The effect is brought about partly by the increased interstitial secretion stimulating other glands, but chiefly by the stimulation of the sex-centres in the brain, which in their turn reanimate the rest of the mental organisation.

MAY EXTEND TO MAN

It is perfectly possible that this method may prove capable of extension to man—but time alone will show if that anticipation is justified.

The important point to notice is that what is prolonged in the case of the rats is not any abnormal condition, but a perfectly normal maturity, to which they are restored even after senility has set in.

Normal maturity in all higher animals, including man, is an active but balanced condition, like that of a spinning top. The prolongation of human life will best be achieved by keeping up that activity and that balance.

Apart from operations such as these practised by Steinach, all of us can do a great deal to prevent our balance from becoming upset.

The most important methods are:

1—By proper diet and reasonable exercise on the one hand.

2—And by cheerfulness and a high nervous and mental tone on the other.

WHY WE GROW OLD

Old age starts because of that balance becoming tilted. In nine cases out of ten it need not start so soon, but even when it has come, Steinach's work hints that it may be shaken off, and happiness and activity be substituted, even if but temporarily, for decrepitude and decay.

The public must be warned at the outset against the eager anticipation for the experiments on which our knowledge rests are all of very recent date.

Throughout the Middle ages alchemists sought the Elixir of Life to give mankind eternal youth. But because they thought in terms of magic their research was unsuccessful. Since the Renaissance, over three centuries have elapsed during which the scientific spirit has been at work. As a consequence of patient observation and experiment, often directed toward quite other ends, our knowledge has grown so that the possibility of altering the normal cycle of human life is scarcely beyond the horizon.

It is, however, no Elixir of Life, magical in its properties, which we look to find, but a limited possibility of prolonging youth and keeping age at bay.

I have concluded from recent discoveries resulting from biological experiments that a considerable measure of control over the life-cycle of a great many animals, and of man also, will be obtained.

This is not to be regarded as a presentation by me of a new point of view. What I chiefly desire to emphasize is that our conception of life-processes has been changed by biological experiments.

The common-sense view of the life-cycle, drawn from the observation of a man and familiar animals is that it proceeds always and inevitably in a definite direction, with a definite plan.

NORMAL LIFECYCLE

The normal life-cycle of man, for instance, is as follows: The individual starts as a minute single cell, then follows a period of rapid growth accompanied by differentiation, then growth without differentiation, then maturity without growth or differentiation, then senility and finally death, which supervenes as a natural phenomenon, even if not through disease or accident.

Experiments have shown, however, that this process is not irreversible and is not inevitably similar in all animals; that it is possible to modify the rate of growth and the length of the period of growth, and thus prolong life.

It has been shown that Planarian flat worms can be kept not only within certain definite limits of size, as was to be expected, but also within certain definite limits of age. One animal has thus been kept at the same age—that is, in the same lively activity, the same form, the same type of behavior—for a time during which the rest of the brood have passed through nineteen generations, a period which, translated into human terms, would take us back to Chaucer.

Thus, age does not merely depend upon the lapse of time; it is the expression of internal processes.
